Best Air Ambulance Company

Based Ontario Canada

Now in its 29th year, Angels of Flight Canada Inc. serves travellers around the globe who experience a medical emergency including injury or illness, supporting the needs of healthcare providers, hospitals, a variety of government agencies, insurers, businesses, and families. We invited Gail Courneyea to tell us more.

As a healthcare based company, Angels of Flight Canada focuses on the detailed coordination of our medical transport, including air ambulance, commercial airlines, and ground ambulance services. The firm's highly trained and experienced Registered Nurse Case Managers advocate, guide and support those in medical crisis, facilitating their necessary travel requirements. Gail explains the importance of the firm's offering and how it works to ensure clients receive the very best of care.

"Without the benefit of flight training or education, there can be difficulty in transportation decision making by medical professionals. Our Flight Registered Nurses on the other hand have received comprehensive instruction on all the critical elements of flight. By providing ongoing specialized aeromedical education and training to medical teams who are charged with the care of clients in this unique environment, we reduce potential risks to the already compromised client during transport.

"Fundamentally, we are unified in our purpose as we work with people who are at their most vulnerable point. Clients need to trust that the decisions being made will produce positive outcomes. Navigating the medical repatriation of a client is a complicated process. Extracting a patient prematurely from a clinically secure environment for example, may put them at risk, or could prove to be life threatening. Often treating physicians will not release the patient until they receive assurance that a hospital bed has been acquired at the destination. In today's healthcare climate, it takes determination and perseverance to achieve that requirement."

Overall, Gail believes that Angels of Flight Canada's dedication to excellence has led the firm to the success it enjoys today.

"In order to ensure that we offer the very highest standard of support and care to our clients, we rely on the latest communication technologies to maintain continuous contact with our medical teams and track the progress of our flights. All medical data is securely stored electronically, HIPPA compliant and is accessible by our RN Case Managers anywhere, anytime.
